Covenant Not to Compete - Definition, Examples, Cases ...

A covenant not to compete, or a non-compete clause, is an agreement in which one party agrees not to work for the other party's direct competition in a specified area for a certain amount of time. While a covenant not to compete is generally found in an employment contract, it can be found in contracts for the sale of a business as well.

What is a Covenant Not To Compete?

In contract law, a non-compete clause (often NCC), or covenant not to compete (CNC), is a clause under which one party (usually an employee) agrees not to enter into or start a similar profession or trade in competition against another party (usually the employer). Some courts refer to these as "restrictive covenants". As a contract provision, a CNC is bound by traditional

While courts are willing to enforce covenants not to compete, judges will construe the terms of those covenants strictly, against the employer. Only "reasonable" provisions will be enforced since covenants not to compete inhibit the freedom of trade. Therefore, it is important to carefully craft any covenant with the assistance of legal counsel so that it will withstand scrutiny of the courts.

Covenants Not to Compete in California
For legitimate business purposes and occasionally to modify the taxation of a business sale, taxpayers--over time--have used covenants not to compete. Under current law, these covenants may be covered by IRC section 197. Recently the Tax Court considered the application of section 197 to a stock redemption including a covenant not to compete.
